

Alabama Department of Archives and History

we are Alabama
Voices, too!

We went to Alabama Department of Archives and history in Montgomery, this is who all came, me, mom, Luke Albin and Kristen Sparks, and Carla Jean. The capital of Alabama was right across the street!!!!

The Archives, one
We got to go where the public can't, it was really cold down there so the stuff wouldn't deteriorate it was called The Archives. The whole museum is how Alabama became a State.

Grandmas attic
There was a place called Grandmas attic there was games and blocks and old type writers and activities, and you can try on clothes, and touch everything.

"The Hiker" at ADAH

Below you will find the plaque that is below the Hiker statue. But some of the words are missing! Use the Word Bank to fill in the spaces with the correct words.

What does the plaque say?

"The Hiker" at ADAH

At the Alabama Department of Archives and History, the largest statue in statuary hall is called "The Hiker." It depicts a soldier from the Spanish-American War. Color the picture of a Spanish-American War soldier. He is just like the statue at ADAH, which is pictured below.

Grandma's Attic was really fun, it was my favorite thing
The ve!

In 1790
George Washington Gave these Pendants
To the Indian chiefs
To represent America's

promise to never take Indian land again. BUT in 1826 Trail of tears began

Silly pictures in The archive

The first constitution of Alabama written in 1819. It is 31 feet long and held together with wax and silk ribbons.

This machine records
The temperatures and humidity of the archives to keep them from getting damaged

if I lived in 1814 I would have to know how to do this
